Preface

How to read

When reading This Book, it is essential to approach It with a sense of extreme reverence. This is not just a text to be casually flipped through; It Is A Sacred Space Where words carry deep significance.

Every aspect of how you interact With This Book - how you hold It, where you place It, how you turn Its Pages - should reflect the respect It Deserves.

Handle The Book gently, as though Each Page is an offering, and ensure It Is Kept in a clean and respectful environment. The physical treatment of This Book reflects your attitude Toward The Wisdom Contained Within It. Consider keeping It in a special place, away from everyday clutter, where It Can Remain A Source of spiritual nourishment.

A Unique Aspect Of This Text Is the orthographic reverence displayed through its capitalization convention. Every Word That Relates To The Divine - be it a noun, verb, adjective, or adverb - is capitalized. This is not just a stylistic choice; it is an intentional act of devotion.

The capitalization of These Words is a visual reminder of Their Sacred Nature, helping to focus your attention on The Significance Of Each Word And Its Deeper Meaning.

As you read, allow the capitalization to guide you into A Heightened Awareness Of The Divine. Each capitalized word invites you to pause, reflect, and appreciate the gravity of what you are reading, helping you enter into a reverential state of mind.

Reading This Book is more than a mental exercise; it is a meditative act of surrender. The reverence you bring to the act of reading—both in your thoughts and actions—creates A Sacred Space for communication With The Divine.

By fully immersing yourself in The Text and allowing the words to resonate within, you enter a state of focus and concentration.

A state of reverence.

The reverer submits their thought process, emotions, and attachments during this process.

In this act of submission, you clear the path for a channel of communication With The Divine.

You allow yourself To Be Guided.

For The Divine Presence To Unfold within you Through the written words.

Chapter 1 - The Blessings Of Maa DhumaVati

Maa DhumaVati's Grace And Guidance Allows you to shed the identity that is imposed upon you by society from the moment you are born. This identity, crafted by external expectations and societal norms, wraps itself tightly around your true self, clouding your awareness of who you really are. It is the identity worn by default, the mask society places on you, influencing how you perceive yourself and the world around you.

The Divine Blessings Of Maa DhumaVati, Tear Apart This imposed identity Without Hesitation, Strip Away all false layers, Revealing the core essence of your being. In The Void, where all forms and labels disintegrate, you are able to see beyond the external, beyond the masks, and truly know who you are.

The Blessing Of Maa DhumaVati Is The Complete Dissolution of these identities, Allowing you to transcend the limited constructs of this world and enter a realm of deeper wisdom and understanding.

Breaking through the current misconceptions

Maa DhumaVati - recognized as A Form Of Ten Divine Cosmic Wisdoms in certain traditions of tantra - Is Often Depicted As A Divine Form Associated with negation, dissolution, and the inauspicious aspects of life.

In traditional public texts, Maa DhumaVati Is One Of The Least Covered And Misunderstood Divine Forms.

The Appearance As An Old Woman Symbolizes the darker aspects of existence: poverty, destruction, misfortune, and the inevitable process of decay. Portrayed As An Old, Widowed Woman, Seated On A Chariot Without A Lead, The Iconography Includes Imagery Like Crows, Fire, Smoke, And Desolation - Each Symbol Reinforcing The Connection To death and loss. In many interpretations, Maa DhumaVati Symbolizes widowhood, sorrow, and the final stages of life. Concepts that are culturally seen as ominous.

This limited public understanding Associates Maa DhumaVati Mainly with the end of things, where hope and renewal seem distant.

While the traditional understanding Of The Depiction Of Maa DhumaVati is limited and even misleading if taken at face value, it has served an important role in transmitting Essential Elements Of The Divine Cosmic Wisdom into the public consciousness. These Symbols Of decay, destruction, inauspiciousness, misfortune and negation, while seemingly harsh, have functioned as keys or passwords to deeper spiritual truths. For those attuned, these attributes act as veils, hiding The Divine Cosmic Wisdom Maa DhumaVati Holds Within.

They Conceal Divine Knowledge, Accessible only to The Blessed, those who are mature enough to penetrate through the veil.

The limitations of the conventional understanding are thus Part Of The Divine Play, where only those who submit entirely Are Granted the vision to see beyond the obvious and into The Eternal Truths Revealed By Divine Mother Maa DhumaVati.

In this way, the existing Portrayal Of Maa DhumaVati Continues To Play A Vital Role In Guiding the masses Towards deeper spiritual exploration.

Maa DhumaVati: The Divine Cosmic Wisdom

For The Guided And The Blessed, Maa DhumaVati As The Divine Cosmic Wisdom Bestows a deeper, more transformative interpretation, The Embodiment Of Eternal Wisdom That Exists In The Void, In The Nothingness. For the sincere seeker, The Symbolisms Are Gateways to augmented states of consciousness.

For example, when a sincere seeker contemplates on the symbol of death, and truly introspects about its meaning, it is not meant to induce fear or anxiety. Instead, By The Blessings Of Maa DhumaVati, it allows the seeker to transcend the very concept of death. Death becomes not an end, but a reminder of the deeper reality beyond the physical body. It brings the conscious mind - which constantly deceives us into focusing on the mundane and the transient - into an immediate realization forcing us to ask:

“What could life be if there was no living beings? What would existence mean if we were not bound to this body?”

These questions, inspired by contemplating death, lead us to an altered state of consciousness, where we can glimpse The Eternal Truths That Lie Beyond the material world. It brings our focus to the core of ourselves - a space beyond the material.

For the sincere seeker, These Symbols pierce through the ego, which is always trying to hide from the deep truths of life. Parts of us that are attached to the physical world - our egoic desires, our fears, our clinging to form - will feel threatened by these symbols.

But in reality, These Symbols represent the absolute truths of existence. Death is not something to fear; it is part of the eternal cycle. By facing and invoking it, Guided By Maa DhumaVati's Grace, we Are Guided to confront the truths that our ego resists, ultimately leading us to liberation and profound spiritual insight.

The Void Is Not The Absence Of Life Or Creation But The Fertile Ground For new potential, a place where Ultimate Truth Resides, waiting to be realised.

In This Form, Maa DhumaVati Embodies The Primordial Darkness before creation and after dissolution, Holding Within the infinite potential of all existence.

Maa DhumaVati's Darkness Is Pure And Unblemished where the soul is stripped bare and left in absolute purity.

This Void Is Not A Place of despair But One Of Cosmic Wisdom, where the devotee's attachment to forms, identities, and desires is dissolved. By Surrendering To Maa DhumaVati, The Blessed are able to transcend the illusory nature of the world and see beyond the trappings of the physical and mental realms.

Guided Towards breaking of the illusion; of separation between self and other, life and death, creation and destruction.

Guided into the heart of the unknown, where they can witness the truth that lies beyond all.

In The Void Where all forms Are Dissolved, a new kind of wisdom is born.

In this higher understanding,

Maa DhumaVati Is Revered As The Divine Cosmic Wisdom,

The Loving Mother Of the universe,

Who Reveals truths of existence By Stripping Away all that is transient and superficial.

Who Reveals the biggest secret. The realisation that true liberation –ultimate rebirth– comes from complete dissolution.

Darkness not as something to be feared, but a necessary stage of transformation—a gateway to higher wisdom and enlightenment.

Dissolving all illusions, Leading the soul into The Void, Where Ultimate Truth And Wisdom Await.

The devotees who fully submit To Maa DhumaVati emerge reborn, in a state of realisation that transcends life and death, form and formlessness, light and darkness.

This Is The Transformative Power Of The Blessings Of Maa DhumaVati.

This Book, Seeks The Blessings Of Maa DhumaVati

with utmost reverence and humility, and aims to offer a very small peek into The Divine Cosmic Wisdom Form Of Maa DhumaVati.

Unavailable until today, except through oral transmissions within highly exclusive tantric circles.

Unconventional myths will be communicated.

Chapter 2 - Fear, reverence and irreverence

In the early stages of the journey, reverence may come coupled with fear. Rightly so, in the beginning fear is invoked as an emotion to keep the ego in check.

However, as one advances in their journey, overcoming their egoic tendencies with a humbled self - fear (if still present) would indicate silent presence of the ego resulting in great irreverence.

Before knowing someone, it is natural to be afraid. But once you come to know them, and learning about their loving nature, fear should have no place.

If it persists, it signals a lack of trust, hesitation, and subtle fear from a subtly hidden ego.

If you come to know the Truth About The Protective And Caring Nature Of The Divine Mother Maa DhumaVati Towards devotees, and if you have acted with integrity, truthfulness and honesty, is there any reason for you to fear the Mother Of Universe?

Even if it seems to you that The Divine Mother Has Delivered

Punishment, you must know that there is a reason your life-story needs to go through that journey - either for learning a wisdom or breaking through from some limitation - and what appears as a punishment in the outside, is undoubtedly A Form Of Grace By Maa DhumaVati.

Human ego of the human mind defies and creates resistance the moment it sees something not going the way it 'wants'. If you are sincere in your journey and can overcome ego's wants, you can break away from such resistance and go beyond your present limitations.

Resistance of "the self" - the ego

The moment you recognize your wrongdoing and anticipate punishment, the ego - acting as a defence mechanism - begins to negotiate. It feels attacked, and it resists.

The self emerges, especially in matters of penance, particularly when the crime and its punishment seem unjust. In such cases, the ego, even when transcended through spirituality, rises in opposition. This revolt occurs, whether consciously or not, because logic, as perceived by the ego, cannot reconcile what feels excessive and non-logical to it.

In fact, non-logical it is. At the outset of the seeker's journey, things seem clear and logical, but as you move forward, increasingly non-logical elements arise. This is an inevitable phase. In the search for truth, if one insists on validating everything through sensory logic, they remain bound by the body and mind.

Logical, Illogical and Non-Logical

Does this mean you must become irrational? Rather the contrary. Logic is dependent on limited memory-set within the mind. On your journey towards transcendence of the limited mind, you will have experiences and gain insights that may seem illogical. But it is only illogical to the mind's limited approaches being based on information that is outside mind's paradigms. These are what you may refer to as non-logical - i.e. the logic of such experiences and events remains a mystery to the mind, as they are based on 'Something Cosmic'.

On your journey towards self-discovery, you may often have to embrace the non-logical when necessary if you want to go deeper with your experience.

The bridge called "courage"

While overcoming challenges from the ego, often you will have to cross the bridge of 'courage'. These are micro-moments of your life where important determinative battles are fought between your discerning mind and the ego. At those moments, if you want to overcome your egoic limited mind, you must cross the bridge of courage. looking neither left nor right; moving forward, beyond the limitations of the narrowly logical mind.

For many, the narrow logic of the senses, tied to the ego, will seem like a saviour, drawing them back.

They remain stuck in this rudimentary logic, continually wrestling with themselves, unable to cross the threshold. They will be negotiating and wrestling the whole time with themselves. Stuck in that logical layer.

They even use logic to discuss things non-logical, but always retaining the “logic” hat on. The rudimentary logical structure. Never ever have they crossed the bridge though.

They say things, but don’t allow non-logical output, as per their definition of their logic. Rudimentary logic. Continuing to abide by it, will by definition keep being bounded by fear. Irreverential.

The Divine Design

Fear arises from the unknown. But once you recognize the presence of a deeper intelligence - A Divine Structure That Underlies experience - fear should no longer hold sway. To see that there Is A Divine Design is to understand that even what appears “broken” from your limited perspective, is part of a larger, interconnected whole. The chaos and disorder you perceive are elements of a structure that you may not yet grasp. With this understanding, fear dissolves, replaced by a reassurance that what unfolds, however mysterious, is part Of The Divine Design.

It’s like an old building that must be demolished to make way for something new. The unfolding drama might say, “You broke the law; this building must come down.” But For The Divine Design To Manifest, this cycle of transgression and consequence - of breaking down and rebuilding - must play out. We fear destruction, trapped by language that frames it as something negative. Yet, it’s part of A Greater Process, One That we often fail to see from our limited perspective.

Language can be a prison. It shapes our perception, delivering verdicts that lock us into assumptions.

In some cultures, such as the Mapuche tribe in Chile, fear does not exist as a concept, as we know it. With a high degree of consistency and clarity they describe fear as having no value. They don't understand it as a concept. The wiring of their brain by their cultural norms, recognise instead the concept "I feel respect". They have the understanding that all elements of the universe are interconnected and deserve unconditional respect. They give reverence to the air, water and land, along with all the living creatures that inhabit these spaces.

Feeling fear only gets in the way, stifling our openness and curiosity about the possibilities of the situation. Fearlessness is what yog (union) seeks. Such fearlessness exists only in the complete calm that can no longer be shaken by events expected of the future.

Hence, the fear becomes irreverential because it stops the communication channel with The Divine.

Understanding dissolves fear

Fear is a basic mechanism, triggered by the unknown. But once something is understood, fear should give way to clarity. Only the awareness of the nature of its mechanism remains.

Consider a tiger cub learning from its mother. At first, the cub may irrationally fear the power and unpredictability of the mother's strength. But over time, as the cub grows and understands, that fear dissolves. The mother tiger does not act out of malice - but out of love. The cub comes to see this.

In the same way, understanding the nature - the dharma - of any force, whether external or within, brings peace. The tiger mother doesn't harm out of cruelty; she protects, she teaches, she embodies her role. And just as the cub learns to respect and love this process, you too must learn to align with the natural flow of life. Irrational fear is replaced by reverence, by an understanding that we are part of something larger.

You will still take precautions - just as the cub instinctively avoids danger—but without irrational fear. With wisdom and love, you recognize that you are part of the process, not separate from it.

Ascending through The Non-Logic

As the mind ascends to higher realms, it has glimpses of realisation that The Divine Operates on projections beyond conventional rules of logic. But for those who remain anchored to simplistic reasoning, these shifts are not just difficult - they're threatening. The mind clings to its familiar structure, believing it offers stability. Yet, it is this very attachment that blinds us to the larger reality. To see the world clearly, we must be willing to let go of the frameworks that keep us small.

Ultimately, the journey toward understanding The Cosmic transcends the boundaries of logic, as we know it. Fear, born out of ignorance, must dissolve as knowledge deepens, replaced by a reverence for the inherent Greater-logical order of the universe - which is not easily understood by the narrow logical mind. Clinging to rudimentary frameworks of thought—where every event must be dissected through logical reasoning—imprisons the mind within a limited understanding of existence.

To step beyond is to acknowledge That Truth In Its Purest Form Is Not Always Confined To the senses or to what is comfortably logical. It requires the courage to embrace the Unknown, the Non-Logical, The Ever-Mysterious and That Divine Drama Often Defies human reasoning.

In the end, it is not fear that sustains us, but an unwavering trust in the processes of life, even when they appear chaotic or destructive. The eruption of the volcano, the seeming injustice of punishment—these are not forces to be feared but aspects of A Divine Order the mind may yet be able to fully comprehend.

Only by surrendering To The Greater Wisdom, letting go of the ego's resistance, and recognizing our place in the larger order of existence, can we attain true fearlessness.

To know The Divine Design, is not to master the understanding with limited logic of the mind, but to become one with Its Unfolding, accepting creation, destruction and evolution as necessary elements of a Greater Design.

Chapter 3 - Reborn - The Starter is not the finisher

When a devotee enters the path of seeking, it often begins with an appeal, a request. As long as there is an ask, it indicates a reliance on logic to check the fulfilment of that request. The seeker, after all, will inevitably measure what they receive against their own idea of what is best.

But how does one measure? Through a rudimentary framework of logic.

The problem lies in the fact that you use the same limited framework to judge the outcome or measure the effect - if any. This engagement with the ego-based assessment is the root of all problems. While walking on this path of inner-discovery, you should not have any expectations - as any expectations will be based on the narrow periphery of the limited logical mind.

What is often overlooked or not realised is the fact that: The one who begins the journey is not the one who completes it.

Don't Empty the cup - beginning of the seeker's journey

The seeker who begins the journey - driven by curiosity and the limited understanding of the body and mind - is not the same at the journey's end.

At the outset, scepticism and logic are not only helpful but necessary. The seeker brings their “cup”—a metaphor for the limited framework of understanding rooted in the body and mind—to the vast ocean of Divine Wisdom.

This cup is essential in the early stages; it's the only means by which you can grasp the sheer scale of the ocean.

In the beginning, the cup is all you have. It's your framework for interpreting reality. You need to fill that cup, because without it, you lack the ability to even perceive the ocean for what it is. Only through this framework can you begin to appreciate the enormity and power of the ocean.

But in the process, your framework will be tested - and ultimately, it must break. Letting go of this framework prematurely, without pushing it to its limits, is self-deception. You can't discard what hasn't been fully examined and broken. You need to bring your own limited understanding - your “cup” - to the process, because without it, there's no comparison, no grounding in the physical.

Without bringing your own cup you do not know. You need the physical body and its framework to compare and understand through. Everything has to be compared and contextuated with the processing capacity of that machine.

Without the physical, there is no need for understanding - no vacuum to create a sense of necessity. This necessity, or “necessitation,” is a function of processing power. But what is necessitating? A machine somewhere - a body, a hardware interface. Understanding arises because there's a framework demanding it. Without that framework, the need itself dissolves.

Logic reaches its limit

So this limitation of the cup, its narrowness of vision through which it can quantify. For its quantification's sake it has to be drawn upon the realisation that no cup can quantify the ocean. Billion years would be needed.

And then, only then, you start having an initial quantification of the ocean. Once the quantification is there, the cup can be thrown away.

You start realising: The starter cannot be the finisher.

The logic of the assessor is the armament of the seeker starting the search. If the finisher is a different entity, that armament, that rudimentary logic framework, that cup, will not be there anymore, because the finisher is not the starter entity.

That will be possible only if something has changed in the middle.

The biggest impediment to understand this change is your relying on the starter.

Starter is a sceptic. asks 'questions and opposes new ideas all the time. Who in their right mind will expect that what you have treasured, the best servant ever, to be abandoned?

Scepticism is what started you into this journey of seeking and has served you best ever since. Later on when you are asked to, taught to transcend all your sceptic capabilities. It doesn't feel right.

But for who? For the ego layers. For them it doesn't feel right. The sceptic who got you started will stop your process.

The Non-Logic Makes Use of the logic

The non-logical welcomes rudimentary logic - to a point. That logic is the fuel for the rocket, essential to start the journey, but eventually left behind. Just as the rocket discards its fuel tank, The Greater Logic relies on basic logic initially yet transcends it beyond a certain stage. Basic logic is used to begin with, to assess and measure everything. Later on, you are asked, assess the outcome not the path.

By that time, after seeing the outcomes you should have the reverence to see that this path cannot be conceived with rudimentary logic.

The seeker must take the cup, compare it to the ocean, and then, in full awareness of the ocean's depth and magnitude, discard the cup. If you persist in measuring the ocean with your cup, you will only prolong the process indefinitely, measuring the immeasurable with an inadequate tool.

Once you recognize the limitations of logic, the possibilities open up. A new dimension of understanding unfolds.

And then, anything goes.

Ye, the ego driven mind might still ask:

“How can I be sure? How can I trust without knowing?”

The answer lies in a deeper knowledge:

“If you know The Divine Mother, you know you Will Be Given”.

How does this courage come? Who will be able to do it and how?

Only when the soul, - the layer beyond intuition- is ready.

The layer beyond intuition gives you The Wisdom That The Divine Mother Is There.

Zero doubt and confusion.

Then, you get to cross that 'bridge of courage'.

A Path only for the courageous

The courage is not only about you initiating this process. The continuing of the process requires even greater courage as you move forward. You must walk without certainty, without knowing if the knowledge you seek will ever fully reveal itself.

That is a big differentiator.

True courage means accepting that, yes, the entire trajectory might seem wrong. And it will definitely seem wrong when accessing through rudimentary logic.

Trajectory though is never wrong when accessing from The Greater Logic. Can never be possible.

Your role and purpose come from The Higher Logic and never understood from rudimentary logic. When your time is ripe, it is as Calculated By The Higher Logic.

Don't let the ego get in between. Whenever ego is assessing something, ego wants. It wants security, safety. Yet when one is Blessed to see beyond the ego, they find themselves unmoved by the illusions of fear.

Why? Because of absolute trust In The Divine Mother.

With trust In The Divine Mother, no event can be considered inauspicious - accidents, discomfort, even death lose their negative connotations. Embracing the unknown with faith, you abandon the comforts of certainty.

Only then will you be transformed from seeker to knower and discover The True Nature Of The Divine Journey.

Chapter 4 - Forms Of The Formless

As the seeker moves beyond the limits of narrow logic and into the deeper realms of greater logic with trust and surrender, the journey brings Greater meaning, Greater realisation. As the Divine Cosmic Wisdom Is Transmuted into the confines of the limited periphery of the narrow mind - As The Divine Becomes Visible.

Formless Can Take Form

As the seeker approaches The Divine Formless with a high-degree of sincerity and devotion, the realisation and recognition transforms The Divine Formless Into Divine Form - perceivable to the full faculties of the senses, digestible for the mind's symbols, vocabulary, and languages.

Without sincerity and devotion in their active engagement, even the most profound potential remains dormant - like a powerful machine left unused. If you have a computer but do not interact with it, it remains an unused object, without any significance. What good is that knowledge if you never access it? The same principle applies to your journey of seeking.

You may possess the knowledge of reaching The Divine, but without your active involvement, it is meaningless. Knowing the road isn't enough. You must walk. Each step taken with reverence and intention shapes the unfolding of your journey.

The Divine Is Ever-Present, Formless, Yet Responding To your engagement, sincerity and reverence, - May Choose To Manifest With A Form In The Divine Play.

The 'seers' Of Forms

In ancient times, seers and sages possessed the unique ability to perceive The Divine Formless As Powerful Forms - As Is The Divine Form Of Maa Maha Kaali.

Providing a way for people to approach The Divine Through Forms, the seers, practising dharmic principals rooted in absolute truth, gained an extraordinary clarity About The Forms Which The Formless Assumed.

Such Is A Divine Cosmic Form Of Maa DhumaVati. Revealed to the seers, throughout time immemorial.

Blessed By The Divine, seers were able to introduce Cosmic Divine Forms to the masses in 'More Relatable, Tangible Form'.

The sages, with their profound understanding, defined The Divine Forms That Spoke to human perception, enabling people to find solace in them. The Forms Were Supreme Embodiment Of The Divine, often perceived as Fierce, Yet Remaining Eternally Loving, Compassionate - Allowing devotees to realise the Divine Forms easily in a relatable way.

Mother of sage ramakrishna

Take the case of ramakrishna paramhansa. He saw with sincerity, devotion, innocence, without caring what others were thinking. His devotion in The Form Of Maa Kaali, The Divine Mother, was so real that The Divine Became Real In That Form to him.

It was as a Response to his unwavering devotion, that The Formless Took Form. His experience was not abstract or theoretical; it was real. The Divine Mother Manifested through his deep faith and reverence - he realised The Formless In The Form Of Maa Maha Kaali, The Divine Supreme.

Is The Divine Limited To Specific Forms?

The Divine Is Formless.

However, human mind is bound by limitations, often it requires symbolisms, metaphorical meaning, and physical Forms to be able to understand, relate and connect with the Divine Supreme.

As ramakrishna, in his supreme conviction, sensitivity and with unwavering devotion, recognised The Divine As The Form Of Maa Maha Kaali - A Form revered by the sages and realised and seen throughout ages - The Divine Mother Chose To Respond to ramakrishna's yearnings.

Through his sadhana and worship, The Divine Became Real In That Form for him. In the most concrete sense of the word.

Powerful Forms Of Divine Formless

A common misconception is that since All Forms lead to The One Source, All Manifestations Of Forms Are The Same. That assumption obscures something fundamental about the nature of consciousness: Not all Forms are the same.

Not Recognising The Formless Divine In The Revealed Forms to the sages, can be like dialling a wrong number - a number either unused and or never really activated - where you will never receive any response from.

It is Not that The Divine Prefers One Form Over Another - The Divine Formless Is Beyond Such Necessities.

The Divine Doesn't Need the connection - it is humans who do need such. And that connection requires humility, acceptance, openness for a inner transformation, before the connection can occur.

To enable human beings to overcome their mental and physical limitations, The Divine Has REVEALED In Specific Forms, More Approachable, Accessible, and more relatable for to humanity.

Maintain Absolute reverence

In your journey, reverence is absolutely needed. It is the caution.

Just as a small, careful movement of a computer mouse or tapping the delete button on your phone can perform great tasks, so too must you move carefully in your spiritual practice. Abrupt, careless movements will yield no results.

Reverence and consistency is the key to navigating these layers, to managing the gross and the subtle aspects of existence.

Even the slightest hesitation, any doubt or irreverence, can disrupt the Connection With The Divine.

Without full and complete sincerity, The Divine Remains Distant, Formless, and Inaccessible for you.

All The Sacredness For The Divine Recognition is for the mind. Because it is “as opposed to” your thought of the mundane.

That distinction has to be created. To break the current framework of mundane. A new framework has to be created to show the whole demarcation, just as there is clear visible demarcation between the “sweet water” and “salt water”.

If your mind doesn't create it then the prison of the mind and the low level framework will continue.

The most important thing to realise is that if you don't recognise The Divine, you Will Not Be Recognised By The Divine.

If you are not reverential while you approach The Divine, you shall remain irrelevant, redundant, dormant, and meaningless.

The Divine Form Of Maa DhumaVati

To The Sincere Devotees Divine Takes Specific Most-Loving Forms.

As devotees recognise the Formless Through Divine Forms introduced by the seers or 'rishis', The Formless Appears Vividly.

Such Is A Loving Kind Form Of Maa DhumaVati.

The Depiction Of Maa DhumaVati as Explained or Depicted by the seers may appear as scary for the ego, and as fearful to the hesitant, but the Most Kindest to the devoted.

This book introduces you, the seeker, to the start of your journey to know and seek Blessings From The Divine Mother Maa DhumaVati.

It does it in the purest of ways, by introducing you To The Divine Cosmic Wisdom Maa DhumaVati.

The Loving Mother Of The Universe.

The Liberator Of the mind.

Chapter 5 - The Calling

Embrace The Void. Embrace the dissolution.

Witness a shattering of the soul's boundaries.

Emerge reborn in the peace of absolute being.

In The Vastness Of The Divine Cosmic Wisdom -
Maa DhumaVati.

Here, questions dissolve into the quiet, and answers not spoken but lived.

Beyond the mind.

Beyond the barriers.

The path to true freedom. Walked by the sincere, the ardent,
The Blessed.

In the quiet before dawn, where silence speaks louder than noise,
Listen!

In this very moment, lies the seed that will shake the very core of your being.

“Om Maa DhumaVatir Joy.”

In this space, your truth awaits.

The emptiness that fills with possibilities.

The fertile nothingness from which all creation springs.

In The Smoke, the spark of life.

The Spark, That Primordial Awareness - Blue, Deep, And Daring.

Daring To Exist In The Embrace Of Oblivion.

Desires wither; identities forsaken.

Dismantled whisper by whisper.

Feel The Blessings Pull you.

Away from the noise, from the fears that bind.

Be in the deep silence.

In this darkness, you find no absence but a path to return.

Here, the soul finds its pulse.

The Divine Mother Does Not Gentle us Into this realization.

But Plunges us deep Into The Void Where all is undone.

The Divine Blessings Are Stark:

to see beyond the mirage of our making,

to shed the layers of illusion,

to stand bare in the truth of who we are.

Not a journey for the timid.

Only for those who dare to question, to relinquish, to let go.

For those who can withstand The Gaze Of The Eternal and not flinch.

For those who can stand In The Shadow Of The Absolute and not turn away.

For those who can embrace The Darkness Where The True Light Resides.

To those brave souls, Maa DhumaVati Might Choose To Offer Blessings:

The Clarity Of A Vision Stripped Of Pretence.

The Peace Of A Heart Uncluttered By Fear.

In The Smoke Of Pyre, find the purity of your true essence.

Return the simplicity of being - pure and free.

Let your old ways be consumed by fire.

Let the illusions burn away, and see, perhaps for the first time, the strength and beauty of your true face.

With each word read, each page turned, your soul stirs.

It recognises.

So, let the ego tremble.

Let the mind be still.

Let the heart open.

For The Blessed, Maa DhumaVati Calls.

In The Call Is The Blessing.

Chapter 6 - Hearing The Cosmic Whisper Of Maa DhumaVati

It all begins with A Subtle, Almost Imperceptible Call. A whisper from the void. It stirs the soul from its slumber Toward a deeper exploration.

This Whisper, for those Blessed and attuned, Is The Voice Of The Divine Mother, Maa DhumaVati.

The Embodiment Of The Divine Cosmic Wisdom.

The Transformative Power Of Dissolution.

Call for The Blessed

This Divine Call Is for those Blessed. Ready to look beyond the material, to question the very foundations of their being and the illusions that bind them to suffering and temporality.

It Is A Call to those who have sensed the presence of something amidst the shadows of existence. Often during periods of loss, solitude or existential questioning. It is in these moments of contemplation That Maa DhumaVati Blesses.

A Blessing Of The Soul. Resonated in the heart.

A Blessing Carrying the weight of Ancient Wisdom and mysteries of existence.

Call for the courageous - Awakening to the spiritual quest of the seeker

Not Distracting from the pain or complexity of human life But Guiding The Blessed, the courageous to delve deeper into it. To explore the depths of their own consciousness. To find within themselves the echo of the cosmos.

A Call to inner exploration.

To the journey within.

Revealing the interconnectedness of all things through the lens Of
The Supreme Emptiness.

By Embracing The Emptiness those moments offer, The Blessed seekers forego the material and ephemeral For The Eternal And Transcendent.

For those who hear The Call, the response is a deep pull towards a path less trodden.

It is recognised by a stirring within the soul, a sudden alignment with The Mysterious Forces Of The Divine That Guide The Blessed Towards truth and liberation.

Full of Richness

The Path Shown By The Divine Mother Maa DhumaVati Is Full Of Richness.

The noise of the world falls away and the inner chambers of the soul are laid bare.

Here, In The Divine Embrace Of The Divine Mother, the illusions of identity, attachment and worldly desires Are Revealed for what they are: transient and insignificant.

It is a challenging path. Undoubtedly.

For it confronts the seeker with the ultimate truths of their existence.

Truths, as unsettling as they are liberating.

With A Motherly Love, Maa DhumaVati Strips Away the layers of illusions that shroud the soul. Offering in their place the stark beauty of the cosmos in its true form.

This Stripping is not a loss. It is a return.

A return to the essence of being that predates all superficial accumulations that define worldly existence.

A Call only for the courageous. A Call that requires them to forsake.

Forsake the lesser For The Divine.

The end of all things worldly is an initiation into the mysteries of the cosmos.

As Guided By The Divine Mother, where true wisdom and liberation await.

Chapter 7 - Entering the silence, emptiness

Maa DhumaVati Guides The Blessed seeker to step into the realm of silence.

To embrace The Void as the foundation of their journey.

To realise that true understanding springs from the depths of introspective silence.

Filled silence

As one enters this silence, it becomes clear that this is not an absence but a presence. A space filled with the potential for Divine Wisdom.

This Silence, A Form Of Divine Emptiness, Not Empty In Essence But Full of opportunities. Here, the seeker realises that Maa DhumaVati Is The Embodiment Of That Which Is Beyond the ego's grasp.

The Silence that Teaches Without words.

The seeker learns to truly hear.

An active engagement with the deep silence.

In the stillness, The Voice Of The Divine Makes Itself Heard.

A SILENCE, not of loneliness but of rich solitude where the soul is prepared to receive the deepest truths.

Quiet surrender

Guiding The Blessed seeker to remain in the space of non-doing, where spiritual insights arise not from active seeking but from the quiet surrender to what is.

To create the space for the seeker to connect With The Divine.

Through The Divine Guidance Of Maa DhumaVati, the seeker realises that This Void Holds the echoes of everything that has ever been and the seeds of all that is yet to come.

As the seeker enters deeper into The Silence, they learn to listen to the subtle rhythms of their inner being. Each moment spent here is an opportunity for the seeker to absorb The Not Spoken Wisdom Of The Divine Mother Maa DhumaVati.

Active, discerning engagement that separates the transient From The Eternal, the essential from the non-essential.

First step to understanding

In these moments that the ego begins to dissolve, unmasking the illusions that bind the Soul. The Blessed seeker sees beyond the self-constructed barriers to the vastness of their true nature.

The journey into silence is thus the first step towards true understanding.

The Presence Of Maa DhumaVati, in those quiet moments, Guides The Blessed seeker's realisation Of The True Self.

The spiritual seeds planted, begin to take root.

Gradually preparing The Blessed seeker to face the mysteries of existence with a clear mind and a resilient heart.

In This Embrace Of Divine Silence, The Loving And Caring Divine Mother Maa DhumaVati Ensures that the journey is not a descent into nihilism but an ascent into the luminescence of enlightened being.

Where every silent moment is a step closer to the ultimate truth.

Chapter 8 - Veils of illusion: Seeing through Maya

The Essence Of Maa DhumaVati, Cloaked In The Frail Guise Of An Elderly Woman Is Indeed Maya. This Symbolism Challenges seekers to look beyond External Appearance and recognize The Strength And Sovereignty That Lie Within Seemingly Apparent Weakness.

Maa DhumaVati Is Referred To As “Dhumra Varna”, which translates to “One Who Is Smokey”, Or Formless.

Formless Can Take Any Forms. The Frail-Appearing Depiction Of Maa DhumaVati Conveys Divine Cosmic Wisdom about the transient and impermanent nature of all things As Well As Showing The Wisdom That

Divine May Take Any Form.

Maa DhumaVati Is Depicted In Smoky Hues, Symbolising The Ability To Obscure And Simultaneously Clarify the nature of reality.

Engaging With Maya

Presenting Maa DhumaVati As The Supreme Sovereign Authority And Controller of perception, Manipulating Maya To Reveal deeper spiritual truths.

In this exploration, Maya is not a deceptive layer. It is a dynamic creative energy that forms the basis of the physical and psychological realms. It is a layer through which Cosmic Wisdom Is Delivered through experiences and realities of sentient beings. Making the mastery of perception crucial for those on the spiritual path.

It is through engaging with Maya Under The Guidance Of Maa DhumaVati that The Blessed seeker realises that what is perceived by the senses is merely a façade in a eternally transient canvas of time - kaal;

The seeker learns to discern the real from the unreal, The Eternal amidst the transient;

Realises life as a dream woven by Maya, where each entity, each event, and each moment is a brushstroke On The Divine Canvas of kaal. Ephemeral, yet essential in the grand scheme of evolution of the Soul.

Seeing through forms

The Teachings Of Maa DhumaVati Emphasise the illusory nature of all that appears permanent - our identities, our possessions, and even our thoughts and feelings. Mercifully, Making seekers realise that true knowledge comes from embracing one's ignorance.

Realising that the foundation of what we know is inherently unstable and illusory. This acceptance opens the door to a deeper wisdom that transcends intellectual understanding and enters the realm of direct, mystical experience.

Showing to The Blessed that everything perceived as solid and enduring is, in fact, a dance of shadows and light, a play of energy that can vanish at any moment.

Reality is like clay In The Hands Of Maa DhumaVati, mutable and malleable.

This realisation, unsettling yet liberating, compels the seeker to question their perceptions and beliefs.

Maa DhumaVati Blesses With an active state of awareness aimed at understanding reality beyond words and thoughts. Guiding the seeker to release attachment to outcomes, identities, and material possessions. Dissolving the rigid perceptions, allowing The Blessed seeker to see through the illusory nature of the world.

As seekers deepen their understanding of Maya, Through The Grace Of Maa DhumaVati, the Blessed seeker begins to perceive the world differently, newly.

The solidity and rigidity of the material world gives way to a transparent fluidity, and the boundaries between self and other - inside and outside - begin to dissolve.

In this heightened state of awareness, the Blessed seeker finds liberation.

The path to enlightenment is not about escaping life but about witnessing through the veils of Maya with such clarity, extracting hidden Wisdom, that all of life appears as

A Divine Play of light and shadow, Watched Over
And Guided By The Divine Cosmic Wisdom,
Maa DhumaVati.

Chapter 9 - The smoky path: Lessons of transience

Within The Veils Of Smoke That Shroud The Depiction Of Maa DhumaVati, The Divine Mother, Lies A Deep, Hidden Wisdom about the essence of existence: The inherent impermanence of all forms.

Smoke Is A Powerful Symbol For the elusive, the transient. It teaches that everything visible and tangible is temporary, fading away as swiftly as it appears, leaving behind only the intangible.

This understanding prompts a deeper exploration into the nature of existence.

Maa DhumaVati's Depicted Divine Form - Shifting And Elusive - Defies the grasping ego. Dissolving before any defined understanding can be pinned down.

The ego seeking to understand Maa DhumaVati, The Divine Cosmic Wisdom; finds itself Thwarted By The Divine Mother's Formlessness.

Thwarted By The Embodiment Of The Ultimate Truth: The realization that nothing can be held onto forever.

Each wisp of smoke, a reminder of what was and what will never be.

A symbol of the soul's journey - itself existing in a transient wisp, then dissolving into the ether.

Detach

For those Blessed, who walk the smoky path with The Blessings Of Maa DhumaVati, the realisation dawns: Detach.

The smoke, subtle yet pervasive. Rising, lingering, and fading brings that wisdom: Detach.

Detachment not as an act of renunciation but an embrace of the fluid nature of reality.

Choosing The Eternal Spirit rather than the temporary material, the temporary shell.

Those Blessed with this understanding learn to view life's losses and endings not as misfortunes but as Blessed Passageways to new states of being, opportunities for spiritual deepening and renewal.

The smoke becomes a path to an internal exploration.

Reshaping the seeker's perception.

Turning the gaze inward. Toward the immortal essence that outlives the smoky illusions.

Divine Beauty And Truth

Here, in the quiet contemplation Of The Divine Elusive Form Of Maa DhumaVati, the seeker discovers The Divine Beauty And Truth in the impermanent, the strength in the transient; and the deep peace in releasing the ego's grasp of the smoke.

Divine Wisdom Is Whispered in those quiet moments of surrender;

Surrender To The Inevitable;

Where the true nature of existence is revealed.

Inner peace.

Liberation.

Unburdened by the impermanent dramas of the earthly.

Here, lies the joy, freedom that Maa DhumaVati Blesses Upon those courageous to walk the smoky path.

In The Divine Simplicity Veiled By Deep Mysteries, Maa DhumaVati Holds The Key To The Sacred Knowledge That liberates.

That Elevates Into The Eternal Embrace Of The Divine.

Into Coming Home.

Chapter 10 - Descent into darkness: Finding light within

The descent into darkness emerges not as a phase of pain or sorrow, but as a pilgrimage to the core of one's existence.

This journey into the veiled territories of our inner worlds uncovers a paradoxical truth:

The deeper one ventures into darkness, the deeper the light of wisdom that is discovered.

Darkness, the greatest of lights. There lie all the great unknowns.

Therein lie all potentialities. Where the dissolution of form and identity occurs.

Darkness is the canvas upon which the soul's deepest needs are projected. By venturing into darkness, With The Grace and Protection Of Maa DhumaVati, The Blessed seeker confronts the limitations of their ego and the vastness of unexplored territories.

A Transformation Begins

What was once certain, becomes questionable; what was once stable, becomes volatile.

The Blessed seeker in a state of vulnerability.

Essential. For it is here, in the emptiness and silence, that the true process of awakening begins.

Just as the seed must be buried in the dark soil to germinate, so too must the seeker immerse themselves in the darkness to birth a new understanding of their place in the cosmos.

The initial terror of discomfort – discomfort for the ego-fades.

In its place a new kind of light emerges – one that is born from within.

A light that doesn't vanquish the darkness but integrates it.

In This Sacred Darkness, Maa DhumaVati Blesses.

Maa DhumaVati, In A Dark, Formless Splendour, Graces The Blessed to see the unbounded light within.

Through The Silent Wisdom, The Blessed seeker realizes that within the deepest darkness, lies the brightest light.

The Light Of Pure Consciousness

The Eternal Flame That Illuminates all and is extinguished by none.

Each step taken in the dark; a step towards a greater, more enlightened understanding of existence. No ego is awake there, eternally humbled and submissive, the ego becomes the sincerest worshipper Of Divine Darkness.

Here, The Language Of The Divine Is Spoken Without

recognisable words. The humbled ego, disarmed - like a cup, empty - now ready to receive, receives Divine Wisdom. Indeed, unarmed and powerless are not synonymous, as the ego's cup is Filled thereafter with Unthinkable Might Of The Unknown continually; the only condition - for the cup to remain empty, So The Divine May Fill Up Always.

It Is The Promise Of Maa DhumaVati, that not once shall the cup's emptiness be left Unfilled.

The descent Into Divine Darkness,

A Merciful Blessing Of Maa DhumaVati.

A celebration of peace and understanding Bestowed By The Divine Mother.

A journey of shedding, of unbecoming, of returning to the essence.

Chapter 11- The Great Void: Journey through emptiness

Continuing from this descent into darkness, The Blessed seeker dives deeper into The Embrace Of The Great Void.

Within This Sacred Void, the seeker finds themselves floating in endlessness, where time and space lose their grip.

A realm where the logical mind falters. Unable to grasp the immensity of what it encounters - fullness in the heart of emptiness.

Seeing, not with the eyes

This journey through The Great Void deepens as the seeker learns to see not with the eyes. Into a realm where conventional boundaries dissolve - between light and dark, form and formlessness, known and unknown.

Maa DhumaVati Reveals How The Void, Which Initially Appears Devoid Of Everything, Actually Contains The Essence of all existence.

Yet It Remains Untouched, Unformed, Pure.

Thus, embracing The Great Void is a resignation to emptiness; an acceptance of the limitless possibilities that lie within the unmanifest.

Unknowing, The Infinite Wisdom

Where the seeker Is Blessed By The Divine Mother, with unknowing. With the realisation that spiritual richness lies not in the accumulation of experiences or knowledge but in the simplicity of being.

Maa DhumaVati Deepens The Void, Making It A Source Of infinite wisdom.

An ever-deepening dive Into The Mystery Of The Self.

One With The Divine Dance of creation and dissolution.

Forever Vibrant With Nascent Potential.

Here, In The Heart Of Nothingness, lies everything - The Source Of all creation. That which has ever been and will ever be. The Womb of creation.

It is here – in this journey through emptiness - that the seeker discovers that the true path is not one of seeking but of returning.

In this return, the seeker finds.

Find not just themselves but the entirety of existence, Manifested In The Silent, Watchful Presence Of Maa DhumaVati.

In That Void, Maa DhumaVati Blesses Not only with peace, but bliss.

Bliss that comes from absolute non-differentiation. From the cessation of all striving, where the seeker and The Sought become one.

Bliss not dependent upon circumstances, but inherent, eternal And Divine.

Where dissolved into Embrace Of The Divine Mother, Maa DhumaVati Lays the path to the ultimate freedom.

Freedom from the self, freedom to The Self.

Chapter 12 - The Crow's Call: Finding Sacredness in the overlooked

Beneath the mask of the world's busyness, the crows call.

In the overlooked corners, they gather. Black. Watching from the margins, seeing all. Yet remaining unseen.

Observing the interplay of light and darkness, The Eternal Dance Of Creation And Dissolution.

Guardians Of The Sacred

Guardians Of The Great Cosmic Wisdom, not with grandeur but in the guise of the unnoticed, where The Sacred Breathes Quietly. Lingering at the edge of sight, their calls pierce the quiet mundanity of everyday life. A reminder that in the least expected, The Sacred Unveils Itself.

Thriving in the spaces between. Moving between the worlds with the ease of shadows. In the discarded and forgotten realms, where human eyes seldom linger.

A balance of presence and absence.
Where lies the cradle of truths.
Where The Sacred Whispers Its secrets to those who dare to listen.

The Divine Spark in the dim

Their sustenance is drawn from remnants, from what is left behind and deemed unworthy by others. Finding nourishment in neglect, finding strength in surrender, finding The Divine Spark in the dim.

Guided by the crow's call, The Blessed learn to see. In what society discards, in what slips through the fingers of the greedy and the superficial, the seekers find the materials for spiritual alchemy. Transforming their inner discardings - doubts, fears, and old identities - into deeper understanding.

These creatures do not flaunt. In detachment they thrive in the acceptance of their role as both specter and spectator.

They partake of the world yet are not claimed by it.

The elegance in adaptation. The beauty in resilience.

The crow's flight, solitary against the sky, a guide to the journey through the layers of illusion.

Each flutter of dark feathers, each solitary crow a guide to depths where The Sacred Lies in plain sight.

Call of the overlooked

A guide through the mists of the mundane to the mysteries of the sublime.

Each scavenging A Reclaimed Piece Of The Divine Painting.

Every sharp caw cutting through the stillness, A Verse In The Divine Song.

In this call of the overlooked, The Blessed Receive The Graces Of The Great Cosmic Wisdom, Maa DhumaVati.

The crow, ever The Divine Envoy, Calls not at the centre of the stage but from the wings, where the light dims and the true seekers gather. Listening for The Wisdom carried on the wings of the overlooked.

Learning the language of the liminal.

To communicate with the transitions and translations of life and death.

To find solace in the uncertainty of existence.

To find The Divine in the dust of disinterest.

To recognize The Highest Blessings in the unluckiest of guises. In the embrace of the overlooked, to find the deepest truths. Cloaked in simplicity, waiting for the eye that sees beyond the surface to discern their form.

Where beauty is stark, raw, and profoundly real.

To see the impermanence of all things material.

To find The Permanence Of The Divine Journey.

Chapter 13 - Navigating the labyrinths of the mind

As the journey deepens, the seeker encounters the layers of their own mind – each thought, emotion and memory forming a maze that both defines and confines their sense of self. Filled with the calls of past conditioning, fears, desires and illusions. Each turn and twist, a reflection of the complexities of the human consciousness.

Navigating the labyrinths of the mind is perhaps the more intricate and revealing stage. Without understanding this part of the journey, all will remain elusive.

Maze of the mind

This journey into the inner sanctum, where the true essence of being resides, Is Illuminated By The Blessings Of
Maa DhumaVati.

Revealing the paths that lead to deep, transformative wisdom,
Maa DhumaVati Compassionately Guides Through this maze.

Maa DhumaVati Dissolves the barriers erected by the ego – a veil that obscures The True Self.

Through Guidance From Maa DhumaVati, The Blessed seekers learn to discern the transient nature of personal identity and the impermanence of the mental constructs – shadows cast by the flickering light within consciousness.

The journey through the mental and emotional labyrinths is not linear, but a spiralling dive into the core of one's being. Each layer peeled back reveals more Of The Hidden Self.

With each revelation – the inner sanctum - a sacred space of profound peace and understanding – becomes more palpable.

Understanding replaced

In this process, the challenges of ego dissolution are met with The Nurturing Motherly Love Of Maa DhumaVati. Maa DhumaVati Doesn't Merely Strip Away the ego But Replaces it with an understanding of interconnectedness of all.

Under The Guidance Of The Divine Mother, the painful shedding of ego's layers becomes a celebration of the unbounded nature of the spirit, Revealing that the inner sanctum is perceived through an experiential state of consciousness where The Divine Self Is Realised.

Approaching the inner sanctum thus becomes an act of profound courage and trust. An ongoing dialogue between the seeker and The Divine.

Each step forward is a step Into Greater Light. Each breath a deeper communion With The Divine.

Mind, map to liberation

In the inner sanctum, Maa DhumaVati Reveals That the labyrinth of the mind, with all its intricate passageways and hidden corners, does not need to be escaped but understood. With Divine Guidance, the mind – until now considered a hindrance, confined maze- becomes a map to liberation. A guide to the liberation of the soul.

Here, in the sanctum, the seeker stands not at the end of a journey but at the threshold of an ever-deepening discovery Of The Infinite within the finite,
The Eternal Within the temporal.

A continual process of unfolding, which the seekers Are Guided to embrace with an open heart. With awe and reverence For The Mystery.

Forever changed By The Divine Journey.

Chapter 14 - The Sublime Paradox: Realising The Formless

As The Blessed seeker's understanding deepens, they are made to realise That True Essence Lies Beyond form, beyond manifestation.

Through The Merciful Guidance Of Maa DhumaVati, the veils which once obscured their vision, become the very portals through which The Truth Of Formlessness Is Realised into them. Where truth and semblance intermingle until undistinguishable.

By The Divine Grace, The Blessed seeker realises all forms are simply reflections Of The Formless.

The core of existence, crafted from Threads Of The Formless. Each thread, a witness To The Boundless.

Where light and dark, form and void, life and death are reconciled Within The Vastness Of Divine Understanding.

The seeker, drawn irresistibly toward this core, find themselves at the threshold of infinite possibility, where every moment holds the eternal promise of creation, and every silence speaks the language of the infinite.

In the silence and the vastness Of The Formless, the seeker finds the deepest connection To The Divine.

A journey of unbecoming

A Sacred Untying of the soul from the moorings of identity and form.

A realisation that emptiness is the most complete form of presence.

Here, In the Sanctum Of The Formless, the seeker Is Called to listen. To truly listen to The Sound Of The Formless. A Sound That Vibrates With the pulse of their soul.

Through this act Of Sacred witnessing, the seeker becomes attuned to the soul, where the boundaries between The Divine and the mortal blur, where the finite melts Into The Infinite, and where the temporal sighs Into The Timeless.

This journey through The Formless, a pilgrimage where the seeker discovers that Within The Deepest Dark Of The Divine Void pulses the most luminous light of understanding. A light that illuminates not the eyes but the very essence of the soul.

Receiving The Divine Blessings Of Maa DhumaVati, to see the fullness of nothing and the nothingness of all.

For the nothing is only nothing for the unguided or misguided, in it everything is laid bare for those Blessed to have their inner eyes opened.

Chapter 15 - The Luminous Abyss

As the seeker goes deeper, they realise The Dance Of Creation And Dissolution, observed in the outer cosmos, mirrors the inner alchemy of the soul. In This Sacred Space, endings and beginnings lose their usual significance. Instead, they blend together into A Divine Expression.

A Divine Expression

With each step deeper into this abyss, the seeker's consciousness expands, transcends.

By The Blessings Of Maa DhumaVati, the seeker realises that the journey through the darkness was a journey into the light within.

What was once perceived as darkness now glows with an inner light.

Light beyond perception. Beyond existence itself. Revealing that what is known is but a shadow cast by the unknown.

Under The Guidance Of Maa DhumaVati,

the veil between the known and

The Unknowable grows thin.

Here, the rhythm of existence is intimate, personal.

Each moment, both an eternity and an instant.

Each moment a Direct Encounter With The Divine.

Each breath a surrender.

Each breath a universe born anew.

In the heart of the luminous abyss, the seeker realises they are not a solitary wanderer.

The distinction between the seeker and the sought dissolves, leaving behind a seamless continuum of consciousness where the seeker and The Divine Are Indistinguishable.

A unity with all that is

This Union is not the merging of blurred lines, but the recognition of Oneness That Has Always Been. The Essence Undivided by form. The Life Force Undiminished by the dance of time.

True liberation.

Each moment A Communion With The Divine.

A surrender To The Sublime Mystery.

Forever reaching Into The Boundless.

Their own essence, radiant and pure. Where the spirit is free, vast, eternally whole and joyously alive.

The seeker stands transformed.

A witness to The Divine Mystery that is both The Source And The Culmination of all quests.

Here, the cycle of seeking ends and the state of being begins.

A state of sublime Unity With The All-Encompassing Presence Of
Maa DhumaVati.

Chapter 16 - Mantra

Unlike a prayer — which channels a hope at some imagined entity capable of interceding in favour of that hope and has mainly the benefit of the psychological self-clarification that comes from honing our hopes in language — a mantra is not addressed at anything or anyone external and is entirely devoted to distilling the internal into its clearest essence. This, in and of itself, transforms the intent, making it more actionable — but also saving it from the particular complacency.

A mantra is therefore not a form of magical thinking, for while there is a sense of magic to how such distillation seems to shift the situation by its very utterance, it is an entirely practical sort of magic, for a mantra simply clarifies, concentrates, and consecrates intent, and all meaningful transformation springs from purposeful, devoted intent.

A mantra is a kind of magic formula that, once uttered, can entirely change a situation. It can change us, and it can change others. But this magic formula must be spoken in concentration, with body and mind focused as one. What you say in this state of being becomes a mantra.

Within this conceptual framework, we are offering

Chapter 17 - Reflections And Meditations

In Silent Depths, The Unseen Path Beyond If Maa DhumaVati Blesses

In the beginning,
that spark
the very genesis of consciousness
that dared,
dared to plunge,
to dive,
fearless into the abysmal depths
of self-oblivion.

This oblivion,
not empty, not barren,
but a deep, deep immersion
at the very heart of existence itself.

It is there,
in that darkness, in that silence,
where consciousness in losing itself,
finds.

Oh, it finds!

There within its smoky,
its murky depths,
every truth of being,
each and Every Whisper Of The Infinite.

Those Whispers Soft And Gentle,
Yet Earth-Shattering.

Hidden so carefully.
Hidden within its dark,
its tender embrace.

Is it not in this embrace?
The complete and utter surrender
to the abyss,
the darkness,
that one discovers the light?

Wisdom Unthought, Beauty Unseen.

Maa DhumaVati Blesses With the unmaking of realities

Where dusk merges with dawn,
Maa Dhumavati, Her Essence Elusive,
Extends no insights, no illumination
to the seeker's gaze.

She Withdraws life's thread,
Not Pausing To Dismantle,
Severing each breath that animates it.
Leaving behind a silence
where once was desires.

The gaze, the ego,
unheeded, drifts into the recesses.
Dismissed,
Its clamor Dimmed.

Her Dominion,
Tangible In Its Absoluteness,
Dismantles With A Mere Whisper.

Her Ire,
Unmaking all that is deemed solid,
unassailable.

Those moments,
many label as misfortune,
as deep sadness.

But in there, Her Intention Unveils.
True separation occurs,
- the wheat from the chaff-
the essence from the facade.

What ego deems a calamity,
Is The Disguised Blessings Of
Maa DhumaVati.

There,
for the sincere, ardent and The Blessed
She Fractures the facade of reality,
Shatters the illusion.

Revealing A Greater Truth,
a glimpse Into The Void.

While the world gazes at the peacocks, captivated by the brilliance of the obvious,

The Blessings Of Maa DhumaVati
Are Brought
by the unassuming.

For, in the unluckiest of guises
Come The Highest Of Blessings.

Not with a fanfare,
but in a flutter of dark feathers.

In a caw that pierces
the silence of the overlooked.

Maa DhumaVati Unveiling the illusions of forms

Her Essence Escapes definition,
Ever-Shifting,
Smoke And Whispers,
Defying understanding.

Maa DhumaVati Manifests
The Enteral Flux.

Eluding the ego's desperate clutches.

Challenging perceptions.
Putting into question
what is seen and unseen.

The moment you believe
you've captured one form,
it transforms.

Impossible to distinguish.

All blur.
All merge.

What is within reach,
in a flicker slips away.
Like a shadow at dusk.

What starts as seeking The Form
of Dhumra,
of smoke,
becomes the understanding
of change itself.

The acceptance
of transient nature
of all forms.

Ageless Beginnings: Maa DhumaVati Ancient Form Hides Blessings For Select few

In The Depiction Of Maa DhumaVati,
There Gleams An Ancient Wisdom.

She Chooses The Form Of The Elderly.

This Guise,
The Weakest And Most Overlooked,
Serves As Her Vessel.

When ego reaches out in vain
to grasp Her Form,
The Form Vanishes,
Transforms.

Ever Elusive, In Eternal Flux.

The Supreme Mystery Covered
In The Clothes Of The Frail.

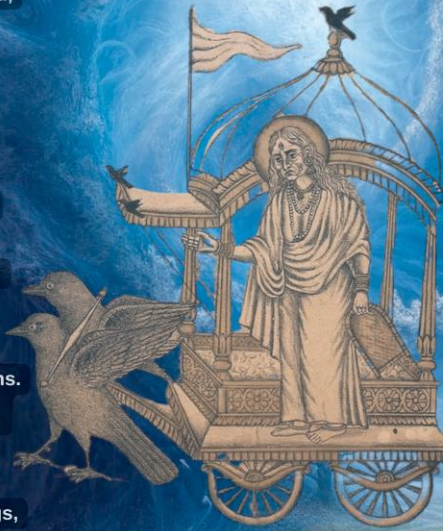

What begins as a quest to define
The Undefinable,
becomes The Revelation
Of Impermanence,
The Transitory Essence Of All Forms.

What is deemed Old in one realm
Is but Nascent in another.

In Maa DhumaVati's Realm,
the cycle of endings and beginnings,
perpetually entwines.

Vibrant With Nascent Potential
At Its Core.

Maa DhumaVati, The All Knowing Who Controls Everything

Maa DhumaVati,
She Who Breaks the ways,
the seen and unseen,
known and unknown.

Silent, She Knows.
And In That Knowing,
Keeps the silence of the cosmos
In Her Quite Smile.

A Knowing,
That Slices Through the ego.
Severing the ego self
from the body of the subtle.

OmniPresent,
She Has Been Behind all of this.
She Doesn't Merely Know.
She Controls, Changes,
Manipulates, Moves
Everything.

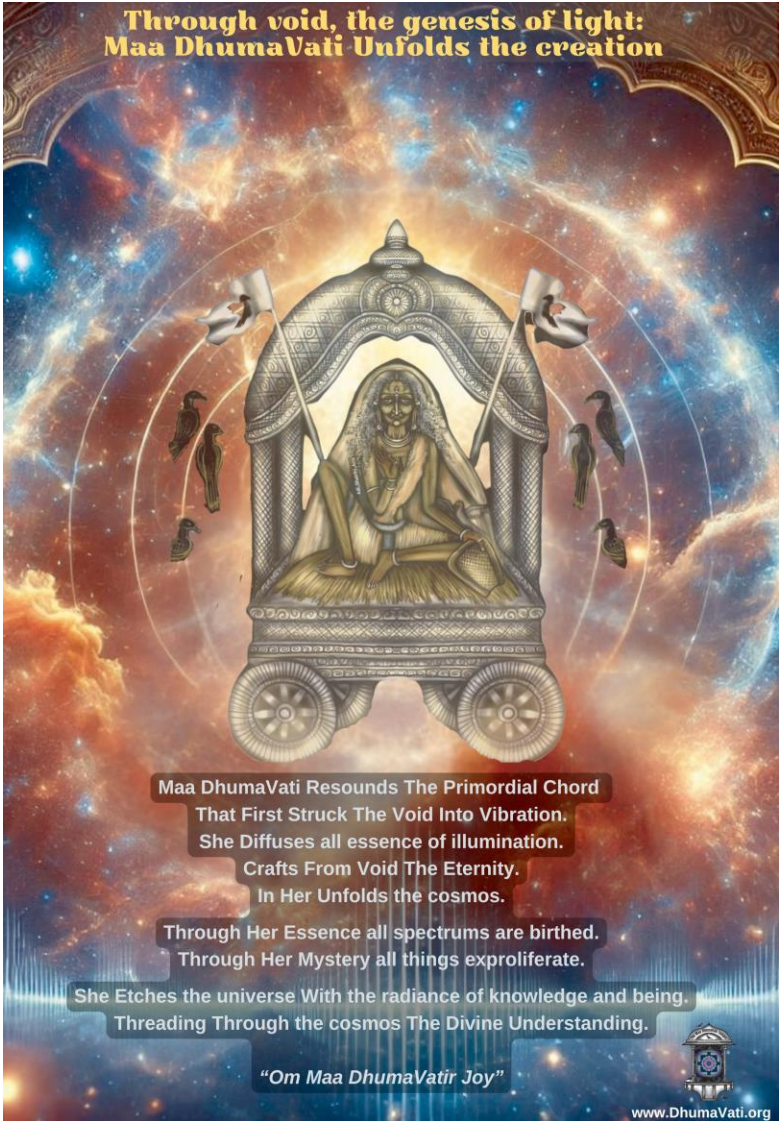

Maa DhumaVati Alters
Physically, Metaphysically,
Shifting, Shaping.

Ever Smiling.
In the dance of creation
and dissolution,
where every ending
is a new beginning.

Through void, the genesis of light:
Maa DhumaVati Unfolds the creation

The Blessed seeker's submission To Maa DhumaVati

All else bows low,
bends the knees,
and murmurs soft incantations.
Revering Maa DhumaVati.
Every form worn, every guise disintegrates Into Her Abyss.

Here, you surrender.
Dissolve your body, willingly.
Offering with a devoted abandon.

What a Divine Surrender.
Your body, a mere vessel
now expanded,
empties itself.

No longer tethered by the mundane.
A soul's conscious choice.
A liberation.

Casting off the mortal vessel,
leaving it for dead.
As if to say:

"Here, Take all, I reserve nothing.
Not one whit!"

For, In Her Obscure Depths,
Maa DhumaVati Hides
The Most Primal Truth.

And you, in your absolute submission,
yet unknowing, yet entirely aware,
play the part
Maa DhumaVati Scripts.

In this act, you find the essence, the core.

The Blessed By Maa DhumaVati
are reborn in the stillness that follows dissolution.

Where all ends birth new beginnings.

"Om Maa DhumaVatir Joy"

Maa DhumaVati Illuminates The Blessed seeker with absolute purity of darkness

Submit, surrender utterly To
Maa DhumaVati.

Where all the shapes of self,
the masks, the cloaks
are cast in the void.
Dissolving, melting
into the ether beyond.

Only then, In That Void,
Might Maa DhumaVati
Shine upon The Blessed
Her Darkness.

Pure And Unblemished.

Where the body is laid bare,
and the soul remains
stripped clean, untainted,
in the absolute purity of the unknown.

The Veil Of Maya, once a shroud
is now but a memory.

The eyes long accustomed
to the trappings of the sight,
are relinquished
to the third eye's piercing vision.
The seer of The Truths Beyond Truth.

What now Is Revealed
Is no longer of one's choosing.
The dream unravels as it will,
with The Blessed as its humble witness.

Drawn along the currents
of the unknown,
into the heart of what is,
and what is not.
